

URBAN TALK

June 24, 2019 | 6.00 pm | A 153, IfA

Common Good Orientation in Urban Development. How does this work?

In 2017, two studies were commissioned by the Friedrichshain-Kreuzberg district in Berlin, which were initiated by a number of urban political activists in the tenant movement and the bottom up movement. The aim was to define the tasks of an agency for common-good-oriented urban development and coordinated action between organised civil society, the district administration and the various non-profit actors in housing provision and real estate development. Meanwhile the newly established agency is preparing for its second phase. How can scientific practice between policy-making and self empowerment of civil society become effective?

Princess Towers
Mietplatz, Friedrichshain

Urban Talks 2019

Verfügbar ab 2021
Provisionfrei -
jetzt reservieren
T +49 30 6521 6358

Architekten
Bauleitung

Common Good Orientation in Urban Development.
How does this work ?

Urban Talks 2019

Dagmar Pelger

In 2017, two studies were commissioned by the Friedrichshain-Kreuzberg district in Berlin, which were initiated by a number of urban political activists in the tenant movement and the bottom up movement. The aim was to define the tasks of an agency for common-good-oriented urban development and coordinated action between organised civil society, the district administration and the various non profit actors in housing provision and real estate development. Meanwhile the newly established agency is preparing for its second phase. How can scientific practice between policy-making and self empowerment of civil society become effective?

Dagmar Pelger is an architect and researcher at TU Berlin (Chair for Urban Design and Urbanization, Prof. Jörg Stollmann) and HCU Hamburg. Her focus on cartography, spatial commons and codesign in urbanization processes is also defining her involvement in coop.disco (with R. Burghardt, P. Coelho, A. Heilgemeir, L. Rochlitzer), a planning and design practice for common good oriented spatial developments, based in Berlin.

24/06
6:00 pm
A 153

Institute for Architecture, TU Berlin
Strasse des 17. Juni 152
10623 Berlin

Habitat Unit um URBAN MANAGEMENT TU

Dagmar Pelger is an architect and researcher at TU Berlin (Chair for Urban Design and Urbanization, Prof. Jörg Stollmann) and HCU Hamburg. Her focus on cartography, spatial commons and codesign in urbanization processes is also defining her involvement in coop.disco (with R. Burghardt, P. Coelho, A. Heilgemeir, L. Rochlitzer), a planning and design practice for common good oriented spatial developments, based in Berlin.

URBAN TALK

June 24, 2019 | 6 pm | A 153, IfA

Institute for Architecture, TU Berlin
Strasse des 17. Juni 152
10623 Berlin